Raspberry herbal honey (Miód malinowy) is a product obtained by serving the bees a nutrient solution from raspberry fruits. Indications: inflammation of the upper respiratory tract, antipyretic, anti-inflammatory. It is mainly used for colds; strengthens immunity.

Nectar-honeydew honey (Miód nektarowo-spadziowy) is a mixed honey, it is made from leafy honeydew and nectar of melliferous plants. Bees work simultaneously on both nutrient solutions, mixing nectar and honeydew with each other. This unique combination also creates one-of-a-kind honey - both in terms of taste, smell and color.

Linden honey (Miód Lipowy) is a good source of energy (100 grams is about 300 calories), and the consumption of linden honey is recommended in all states of weakness, fatigue, malnutrition and convalescence after diseases. Like linden flower, linden honey was a basic ingredient in our grandmothers' home medicine cabinet, irreplaceable during colds.

Rapeseed honey (Miód rzepakowy) helps with many health problems. It is recommended in the case of cardiovascular diseases: myocardial insufficiency or atherosclerosis. The product lowers blood pressure, strengthens coronary vessels, improves the functioning of the bloodstream. It replenishes deficiencies of important microelements, especially magnesium and potassium.

Bean honey (Miód fasolowy) is a Polish equivalent of Manuka honey, but it is formed as a result of bees pollinating native plantations of legumes. As a result, it has a strong pro-health effect.

Propolis has antimicrobial and antiviral effects (effective against influenza viruses, meningitis, polio, vesicular stomatitis and herpes virus), inhibits the multiplication of free radicals, protects against platelet clumping, increases systolic heart function, lowers blood pressure with hypertension.

Price: 25 € / 100ml

Galleria mellonella extract is one of the least known products associated with bees. It is very helpful for people after heart attacks, strokes and pneumonia. Reduces blood clots, varicose veins, vein swelling, improves overall health. Recommended during the recovery period after surgery and injuries.
